Introduction

At the service of citizens and businesses

European Union citizens and businesses must be informed effectively about their rights and the opportunities arising from the EU. In order to do this in the most direct and efficient way possible, the Commission has set up a series of services in partnership with various actors in the Member States. The services interact with the public at national, regional and local levels, responding to requests for information or assistance. They play an important role in communicating with citizens and businesses, but also in listening to their feedback and learning from their needs.

This booklet brings together information on 21 EU services currently operating in the Member States. Each service offers tailor-made support in a particular area, ranging from general information about the EU to more specific topics such as how to find a job, a business partner or funding for a project in Europe.

Citizens and businesses that travel or operate across borders can get answers to the following and many other queries: What are my rights if I move to another EU country? Who can help me to overcome administrative obstacles in another EU country? How can I offer my services in other countries? What do I do if a trader refuses to take back a faulty product?

In practice, there is a contact point for everyone, catering for the different needs of various groups. The EU is never very far away!

With this booklet, the Commission tries to ease the way for citizens and businesses to the most appropriate service for their enquiry. The Commission is working to facilitate the public's access to its information, communication and assistance services and to improve cooperation between the services so that users are not sent from pillar to post.

While this streamlining process is ongoing, we also encourage you to look at another tool which guides users to the existing services in just a few clicks:

The EU is just a phone call away

The Europe Direct contact centre provides answers to general questions about the EU in all official EU languages free of charge.

Topics covered

The contact centre is a central EU information service providing information about the EU in general and on specific EU policies as well as contact details of organisations people may wish to get in touch with. It also gives practical advice on issues ranging from how to complain about unsafe products to how to get qualifications recognised.

Liliana, 22, student, Romania

I have used the Europe Direct contact centre several times and always got competent answers to my questions in my native language. The range of areas covered is very broad, and one can call with practically any kind of question. For instance, I investigated the EU climate change policy for my studies, and got advice on funding opportunities for a traineeship in an Italian enterprise as well as information on how I am covered under the Italian social security system.

How it works

A toll-free number from anywhere in the EU is available during the opening hours (9h00–18h30 CET, weekdays). It is also possible to send a question using the online enquiry form. In addition, a web assistance service helps users locate specific documents on the EU website.

Who?

Europe Direct contact centre

What for?

Central contact point for all enquiries related to the EU and its policies as well as the rights and opportunities of EU citizens

For whom?

Citizens, businesses, students or anybody who has a question on the EU

Facts and figures

The Europe Direct contact centre answers around 100 000 enquiries yearly

Where?

Accessible from everywhere in Europe and worldwide, the Europe Direct contact centre is based in

KEY INFORMATION

Brussels, Belgium, and operates with highly qualified multilingual staff

Contact

- By phone: the toll-free number 00 800 6 7 8 9 10 11 (certain restrictions may apply for calls from mobile phones and/or hotels) is available from anywhere in the 27 Member States during opening hours (9h00-18h30 CET, weekdays). People outside the EU should call +32 22999696 (standard local telephone charges apply).
- By e-mail via the online enquiry form

Europe Direct network

The EU in your region

The 500 Europe Direct information centres are the local interface between the EU and its citizens. Their staff provide information tailored to the public's needs, and engage in dialogue on EU topics.

Topics covered

Staff at information centres answer questions on the EU and provide information on its institutions and policies, including funding opportunities. The centres also promote local and regional debate about the EU, produce and distribute printed and electronic information material, and offer the public an opportunity to send feedback to the EU institutions.

How it works

Anyone who wants to find out more about the EU, whether they need general information, or an answer to a specific question, can get in touch with their local Europe Direct information centre. The staff will generally answer right away and provide relevant reference material, or refer callers to the right source of information. The local centres also reach out to the public, for example by organising events in schools, taking part in fairs, or publishing articles in the local media.

Björn, 21, student, Sweden

I cast my vote for the European Parliament elections in 2009 for the first time. To get more information, I attended a meeting between first-time voters and current MEPs organised by my local Europe Direct centre. After the meeting, I understood the role of the European Parliament, and I felt better prepared to make an informed choice.

CITIZENS

Citizens Signpost Service

Personalised advice on single market rights

The Citizens Signpost Service (CSS) provides specific, tailor-made information to EU citizens on their rights under single market rules.

Topics covered

Queries may concern topics such as rights of residence, access to medical care and claiming a pension from or registering a car in another country. Questions on social security issues are the most common, followed by the right of residence and the right of access to employment.

How it works

The CSS comprises multilingual, independent legal experts, based in the Member States, who clarify relevant legislation and give advice on how to assert rights and obtain redress. It responds by phone or by e-mail in the requested official EU language within one week.

Bartek, 43, engineer, Poland

I was wondering whether I could continue to receive Polish unemployment benefits if I moved to the Czech Republic. The experts at CSS informed me that unemployment benefits may be exported to another EU country for a certain period. I could thus continue to collect the Polish unemployment benefits while looking for work in the Czech Republic.

Who?

Citizens Signpost Service

What for?

Free, personalised advice to citizens in cross-border situations in the EU. The CSS experts clarify legislation, refer the person to the right body and, if necessary, explain how to obtain redress

For whom?

EU citizens

Facts and figures

- The CSS handles around 10 000 queries per year
- Average response time is 3 working days

Where?

All EU countries

Contact

The CSS can be contacted via the enquiry form on the website ec.europa.eu/citizensrights/submission or by phone via the free Europe Direct number 00800 6 7 8 9 10 11

Free problem solving concerning internal market rules

SOLVIT offers solutions to citizens and enterprises with cross-border problems arising when public authorities do not implement EU legislation correctly.

Topics covered

The SOLVIT team deals with obstacles encountered by businesses or citizens when working, travelling, studying or living in another EU country. The most common cases include the recognition of professional qualifications, market access for products and services, residence rights, social security, motor vehicle registration and taxation issues.

How it works

The local SOLVIT centre of the person or business submitting a complaint forwards the case to the SOLVIT centre in the EU country where the problem occurred. This SOLVIT centre then negotiates with the national public authorities on how to resolve the problem. At the same time, it cooperates with the complainant's local SOLVIT centre so that everyone is kept informed of progress of the case. SOLVIT aims to handle cases within 10 weeks.

Based on an informal approach to problem solving, SOLVIT cannot help in situations where legal proceedings are underway. It does not deal with business-to-business or consumer-to-business problems.

Mirek, 47, entrepreneur, Czech Republic

My company distributes construction products in Slovakia, including washbasins from Romania. Despite the fact that an authorised Czech body had tested the products after they had been imported into the Czech Republic, the Slovak trade inspection demanded an additional certificate from the Romanian producer. SOLVIT convinced the authorities that the Czech certificate of conformity should suffice. The products were released for sale immediately.

Who?

SOLVIT

What for?

Free of charge, fast and pragmatic solutions to problems arising from the incorrect application of EU law by national administrations

For whom?

EU businesses and citizens

Facts and figures

- The aim is to find a solution within 10 weeks
- 83 % of all cases are solved

Where?

All EU countries plus Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway

Contact

Complaints can be submitted online at ec.europa.eu/solvit/site/submission or by post, e-mail or fax to your local SOLVIT centre

SOLVIT website: ec.europa.eu/solvit/

Providing information and support as consumers shop across the EU

An EU-wide network designed to promote consumer confidence, the European Consumer Centres Network (ECC-Net) informs consumers on their rights and provides advice and assistance on complaints and dispute resolutions where the consumer has made a cross-border purchase.

Topics covered

ECC-Net informs and handles complaints particularly in the following areas: air travel (cancellation or flight delays, lost luggage, etc), e-commerce, package travel, timeshare and holiday clubs, unfair terms of contracts, defective products or services and delays in delivery.

How it works

When a consumer contacts a national ECC with a complaint on a cross-border purchase, the centre in turn collaborates with the ECC in the country of the trader to reach an amicable solution or an agreement via an out-of-court dispute resolution. These services are free of charge.

Marika, 42, teacher, Hungary

I bought a satellite receiver from an Austrian trader but it was broken when it arrived. I sent it back and repeatedly tried to contact the trader without success. Upon asking the ECC for help, I received my repaired satellite receiver.

Who?

ECC-Net – the European Consumer Centres Network

What for?

To inform consumers about their rights under EU and national legislation and give advice and assistance on their complaints and in settling cross-border disputes out of court

For whom?

EU consumers

Facts and figures

- Over 62 000 cases dealt with in 2008, more than half of which were complaints

Where?

All EU countries as well as Iceland and Norway

Contact

The local ECC can be contacted via:

FIN-NET

Settling cross-border financial disputes out of court

FIN-NET is a network of national out-of-court complaint schemes (such as complaint boards, ombudsmen and mediators), which handle cross-border consumer complaints in the area of financial services.

Topics covered

FIN-NET members resolve disputes between consumers and financial services providers on various banking, insurance and investment services, such as credit, payments and life insurance.

How it works

Consumers with a complaint can either use the FIN-NET website to identify and directly contact the relevant out-of court complaint scheme in the country of the financial services provider or contact a scheme in their home country, which will then identify the relevant scheme in the country of the provider and supply information on its complaints procedure. The consumer may also use an online form to contact FIN-NET members.

Stéphane, 30, computer programmer, France

I insured my notebook against theft with a German insurance company. However, when my notebook was stolen in France, they refused to cover my loss. I contacted the French complaint scheme, which referred me to their colleagues in Germany. After providing some documents, I received full compensation.

KEY INFORMATION

Enterprise Europe Network

Business support at your doorstep

The Enterprise Europe Network is a one-stop-shop for European businesses, in particular small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs). It provides free, practical advice and a wide range of business and innovation support services in the relevant language.

Topics covered

The experts at the local Enterprise Europe Network centre offer services such as business and technology partner searches and visits to individual companies to assess their needs. They also provide information on EU funding opportunities such as the Seventh Framework Programme, help businesses understand how EU legislation applies to their business, and encourage businesses to share best practices and research results in fields such as innovation and expansion to new markets.

Grzegorz, 41, businessman, Poland

I run a web development company and needed funding for several web projects. Thanks to the help of the staff at my local Enterprise Europe Network partner, I received around €22 600 in Structural Funds to develop new websites. Thanks to this support, I have been able to hire four additional people.

How it works

The Enterprise Europe Network is operated by consortia of qualified organisations such as chambers of commerce and industry, technology transfer centres and regional development agencies. Whenever a business is in need of advice, it can contact the local Enterprise Europe Network centre. Furthermore, the local Enterprise Europe Network partner gives businesses access to the expertise of all network members, in Member States and in partner countries.

Business Support at Your Doorstep

KEY INFORMATION

Who?

Enterprise Europe Network

What for?

Free, practical advice on EU legislation and funding opportunities as well as business and innovation support for European businesses with a particular focus on SMEs. The centres also encourage technology and knowledge transfer

European employment services

EURES is a network of public employment services, trade unions and employers' organisations. It facilitates employment across borders by helping jobseekers to find work in another country and by helping employers to recruit from abroad free of charge.

Topics covered

EURES provides information, advice and recruitment services. In addition to the Job Mobility Portal that lists all job vacancies available from Europe-wide public employment services, the human network of more than 700 advisers provides information on all aspects of living and working in another country. In addition to answering questions on legal and administrative issues and labour law, they can also give advice on everyday issues such as the cost of living, health and finding a school.

How it works

Jobseekers can search for a job on the EURES website, where they can also create an online CV and subscribe to e-mail alerts on vacancies matching their profile. In addition, local EURES advisers are available for personalised career guidance. Employers can advertise a job, receive CVs by e-mail and send enquiries to jobseekers via the EURES website.

Enrique, 56, director of fruit growers company, Spain

We need about 1500 workers for our annual harvest and have had very good experiences with workers from abroad. Since one of my staff suggested seeking the help of EURES for their recruitment, things have become a lot easier. EURES Poznań provides us with the contact details of jobseekers and we contact them directly.

KEY INFORMATION

The EU for its younger citizens

Eurodesk is a network of information centres about EU issues that targets young people.

Topics covered

The Eurodesk staff answer questions on the EU relevant to young people, ranging from general queries, such as study possibilities abroad, to more complex questions on EU youth policies. In addition, they provide information on EU funding opportunities for young people and run awareness-raising campaigns on European issues at schools and for youth organisations.

How it works

There are Eurodesk information centres in the Member States that can be directly contacted. In addition, information is available on the Eurodesk website (www.eurodesk.org) and the Youth portal (europa.eu/youth/).

João, 20, student, Portugal

I am active in a local youth organisation and last year we wanted to do an international student exchange. As I had no idea how to organise this, I went to my local Eurodesk office for guidance. They not only helped me to find a suitable French exchange partner but also assisted me in applying for funding under the Youth programme. The exchange was a great success!

EURAXESS Services network

Researchers in motion

The EURAXESS Services network is a one-stop-shop for researchers seeking to live and work in another European country.

Topics covered

The EURAXESS Services network has service centres that provide free, personalised assistance on matters such as research vacancies abroad, moving abroad and issues ranging from accommodation, language courses and day care to work permits, intellectual property rights and social and cultural aspects.

How it works

Researchers from the EU or third countries can either contact a local service centre directly by e-mail or phone, or search the EURAXESS website by subject and country. EURAXESS Jobs is another EURAXESS service which lists hundreds of vacancies and provides practical information on everything from visas to childcare facilities near a new job abroad. EURAXESS Rights provides information on legislation, such as the European charter for researchers, while EURAXESS Links is a networking tool for European researchers abroad.

Abu, 32, gynaecologist, Palestine

When I was offered the opportunity of specialist training at the University of Liège in Belgium, the university's EURAXESS service centre assisted me with the paperwork for my travel visa and for my registration at the local commune. This greatly facilitated my move to Belgium.

Who?

EURAXESS

What for?

Free, personalised, practical assistance for researchers moving to a European country

European Documentation Centres

An EU library close to home

European Documentation Centres (EDCs) help universities and research institutes to promote and develop education and research on European integration, encourage debates on European topics and help citizens to find out about the Union's policies.

Topics covered

The Documentation Centres collect official EU publications as well as statistics, studies and dissertations on European integration. They cover all EU policies as well as more general information.

How it works

The EDCs can be seen as local EU libraries. They offer online access to EU sources as well as a collection of printed publications. The staff help with enquiries ranging from straightforward document searches to in-depth research on European topics, whether online or in print.

Penelope, 25, PhD student, Greece

Sometimes I cannot find a document which was cited in the literature. I then go to the EDC and ask the staff to help me. If it is not available in their collection, they order it for me. Our university also subscribes to a lot of databases and students benefit from training by the EDC.

KEY INFORMATION

Contact points for the recognition of professional qualifications

WORKERS

Moving your job abroad

The contact points assist people who want to exercise a regulated profession (requiring specific professional qualifications) in another European country.

Topics covered

Contact points provide citizens with free information and legal advice on issues such as the procedure for getting qualifications recognised (documents to provide, deadlines, etc). It is important to note that the recognition of academic qualifications (i.e. with a view to pursuing studies in another Member State) is dealt with by the ENIC-NARIC network (see overleaf).

How it works

The person wishing to enquire about the recognition of his or her professional qualifications can turn to the local contact point. Whereas in some countries it is possible to visit the contact point, in others the citizen should make contact by phone or by e-mail. Contact points cooperate with each other, so citizens may address their queries to the contact point in the host country or in their home country if this is easier.

Geert, 43, physiotherapist, Belgium

When I moved to France with my family, I did not know how to obtain the authorisation to exercise my profession there. I was referred to a contact point by a friend where I was told how to proceed, where to submit my request for recognition and which documents to include.

Who?

Contact points for the recognition of professional qualifications

What for?

Assistance for people wishing to exercise a regulated profession (requiring specific professional qualifications) in another European country

For whom?

Citizens with professional qualifications that they would like recognised in another European country

Facts and figures

- Established in 2008
- Teachers, physiotherapists and nurses are the three most mobile regulated professions in Europe
- 90% of all requests for recognition of qualifications are answered positively

NARIC

Gateway to the recognition of academic qualifications

The National Academic Recognition and Information Centres (NARIC) deal with academic recognition of diplomas and periods of study in the EU and partner countries.

Topics covered

The national centres provide information and advice on the recognition of foreign diplomas, degrees and other qualifications as well as on the different education systems. Staff also provide guidance on opportunities for studying abroad, including information on loans and scholarships, as well as on practical questions related to moving abroad and to the recognition of academic qualifications.

How it works

The national centres bring together national recognition officers responsible for academic recognition of diplomas and periods of study. It is possible to contact the national centres directly for free, personalised advice or to browse the website for more general information.

Natalia, 35, chemical engineer, Lithuania

When my husband was offered a job in the Netherlands, I was not sure whether I could also work there. The Lithuanian authorities referred me to the national NARIC centre, which put me in touch with the Dutch NARIC. They were very helpful, explaining and giving advice on all the steps I had to take for the recognition of my diploma.

Transparency in qualifications and competences

The Europass documents help jobseekers to clearly present their qualifications and skills, making them easier to understand and appreciate anywhere in Europe.

Topics covered

Europass includes five documents: the Europass CV, the Europass language passport, Europass Mobility, which records a learning experience abroad and the Europass Certificate Supplement and Diploma Supplement, which accompany a vocational training certificate or higher education diploma respectively.

How it works

The Europass CV and language passport can be completed online free of charge via the website (europass.cedefop.europa.eu). The other documents are delivered to citizens upon the successful completion of an education or training course. The national Europass centres promote the Europass service, directly manage the Europass Mobility and provide information to organisations and citizens.

Kaisa, 29, engineer, Finland

When I was applying for a job in the UK, I wasn't sure how potential employers would prefer to see my CV presented. I was afraid of ruining my job chances from the outset by going against protocol. Luckily a friend told me about the Europass CV, and then I couldn't go wrong. It made my job applications a lot easier, and I got a great job!

Who?

Europass

What for?

Makes personal qualifications and skills easier to understand and compare throughout Europe

For whom?

Citizens looking for a job, further education or training in Europe

Facts and figures

Euroguidance

Support to careers advisors

Euroguidance is a network of national information centres supporting guidance services in 31 European countries.

Topics covered

Euroguidance provides a service to people who wish to work or study in another country by helping guidance counsellors to understand learning and career opportunities throughout Europe. Online tools for guidance professionals include a database of projects and good practices in career guidance and a social networking site. Euroguidance also contributes to Ploteus, the portal on learning opportunities throughout Europe.

? How it works

Guidance counsellors can contact their local Euroguidance centre for free, personalised advice on opportunities and conditions for citizens who wish to move abroad for work or study. Citizens can also contact the Euroguidance centres directly and visit the Ploteus portal.

Laine, 37, career guide, Estonia

I often get enquiries from people wishing to improve their language skills by working abroad. I was never sure how best to help before I stumbled across the Euroguidance site. I immediately became a member and learnt all about the job market in the UK and Ireland. I am now much better equipped to advise people on how to improve their languages.

Funding programmes

The European Commission allocates about 20% of the EU budget in the form of calls for tender, grants, funds and other programmes. The most important funding programmes include the Seventh Framework Programme for research and technological development (FP7), MEDIA, Lifelong learning, Youth, Culture and Tempus (Trans-European mobility scheme for university studies). In addition to detailed information on the respective funding websites, there are national contact points in each participating country which give free, personalised advice and further information. The following non-exhaustive list provides an overview of the topics covered by the different funding programmes as well as online registers of national contact points.

Seventh Framework Programme for research and technological development

Transnational research cooperation, dissemination of research results, funding for 'frontier research', improving research infrastructure, career guidance for researchers

EU information and assistance services

At the service of citizens and businesses

The Commission has set up a series of services in partnership with various actors throughout the European Union to inform the general public about their rights and the opportunities arising from the EU.

This booklet brings together information on 21 EU services currently operating in the Member States. Each service offers tailor-made support in a particular area, ranging from general information about the EU to more specific topics such as how to find a job, a business partner or funding for a project in Europe.

With this booklet, the Commission tries to ease the way for citizens and businesses to the most appropriate service for their enquiry. In practice, there is a contact point for everyone, catering for the different needs of various groups. The EU is never very far away!
